

Jack Tworlov, American painter of the "New York school" will be in Cleveland during the week of March 25. Mr. Tworlov's visit will be sponsored jointly by The Cleveland Museum of Art and The Cleveland Institute of Art. During the week he will: visit classes and talk with students at the Institute; lecture to the student body at the Institute; talk with the staff at the Museum; and give a public lecture, entitled Comments on Modern Art, in the Auditorium at the Museum at 8:15 p.m., Friday evening, March 30.

Mr. Tworlov is one of the leading artists of the so-called second generation of the "New York school." This is group of artists who came to prominence after 1948 and includes, in addition to Tworlov, such names as: Willem de Kooning, Franz Kline, Philip Guston, Bradley Walker Tomlin, and James Brooks. Tworlov was born in Poland in 1900 and came to the United States in 1913. He studied at Columbia University, the National Academy of Design, and the Art Students' league. He has taught at Queen's College, Pratt Institute, and the University of Minnesota.

While he is in Cleveland, Mr. Tworlov will be entertained at dinner by Mr. and Mrs. George P. Bickford on the evening of Wednesday, March 28. Members of the Junior Council of the Museum, and of The Cleveland Society for Contemporary Art will also entertain Mr. Tworlov during his stay.

The Museum has recently purchased a major painting by Tworlov. This picture, entitled CREST, has been borrowed for the exhibition of Contemporary American Art at the Seattle World's Fair.
